TO DECLARE MAN LEGALLY DEAD

Judge Blair Will Have to Decide William T. Hittle is Not in Land of Living.

IF SONS GET SHARE OF ESTATE

They Bring Suit for Part of Land he Would Have Heired—Disappeared in 1888.

Alonzo Blair, judge of the circuit court, is undecided as to whether or not he shall declare a man legally dead. The question has arisen in the circuit court in a father peculiar circumstance as the result of two suits being filed, one for partition and one a petition to sell real estate to pay debts. The suits are both over the same estate and it is another question as to which one is the legitimate one.

The whole question hinges on the condition of William T. Hittle, a nephew of Mrs. Elizabeth Hittle, who died some time ago leaving thirty-four and a half acres of land; whether he is dead or alive. His sons desire to have him declared legally dead so that they may get his share of the estate of Mrs. Elizabeth Hittle. The administrator of the estate, Carey Keaton, has filed a petition to sell the real estate to pay the debts and is working on the theory that the Hittles are mixing into the proceedings when they have no business there.

The partition suit was filed by A. N. Nelson, Ora E. and Alva E. Hittle and others a few days before the petition was filed by the administrator. The relatives who demand a partition think that they should have the first decision while the administrator believes that they have no place in the case as their father was only a nephew of Mrs. Elizabeth Hittle.

In their complaint for a partition the Hittle brothers declare that their father, William T. Hittle, who was a nephew of the deceased and through whom they expect to get a portion of the few acres of land, disappeared in 1888 and has never been heard of since that time. The boys further attempt to show that his wife, their mother, obtained a divorce from W. T. Hittle in 1887 and married John Miller in 1902 which gives her no claim on the share of the estate which her husband would have heired had he been here.

It is a question whether or not the court can declare W. T. Hittle legally dead. He must do that before the two sons may have their father's share of the land. On the other hand, Judge Blair might partition the property and place the missing man's share in the hands of the clerk of the court. Then the heirs who want a share of the land now might bring suit for the court to declare their father legally dead so that they might have his share of the estate.

Two cases which were sent here on a change of venue from Hancock county were dismissed today: Walker against the Southern Indiana Gas Company and Crawford Fairbanks for gas lease rentals, and the case of Anthony T. Gingley against the Southern Indiana Gas Company and Crawford Fairbanks for an injunction bond.

Prosecutor Edwards of Fayette county sent the court word today that he and the attorneys in the manslaughter case which was sent here from Connersville on a change of venue will be here tomorrow morning to take some steps in the case. Henry Osborne is charged with killing Rupert Chrisman.

CAR THIEVES AT WORK HERE

Robbery at C. H. & D. Freight Depot
Reported to Police.

Car thieves made a "haul" Friday night on a car of merchandise at the C. H. & D. freight depot but the robbery was not discovered until late Saturday evening. As far as can be determined the merchandise missing includes three pounds of butter, a box of crackers and one box of Star tobacco. A thirty-three pound tub of butter, billed to A. B. Black & Co., was found in a stock car nearby with three pounds missing. A man was seen to enter the car on the day of the robbery and the case has been turned over to the police.

ANOTHER SENATOR MAY BE GUEST HERE

Benjamin F. Shively of South Bend is Invited to Participate in "Sherman Day" Exercises.

ADDS TO GALAXY OF BIG MEN

Senator Benjamin F. Shively of South Bend, United States senator from Indiana, has been invited to take part in the "Sherman day" exercises here Tuesday, October tenth, one week from tomorrow. An invitation has just been sent to Mr. Shively and there is every reason to believe that he will be present. His coming will mean the appearance of another statesman of national reputation which will make the galaxy of prominent men here on that day even more brilliant and more attractive.

Every preparation is being made to make the day one that will long be remembered in Rushville. Word is being received by many Rushville people from their friends in all parts of the State that they will be here on that occasion. The last meeting of the "Sherman day" committees will be held after the special meeting of the Rushville Retail Merchants Association Wednesday evening.

WAS ARRESTED ON FORGERY CHARGE

Harry Green, Son of Mr. and Mrs.
Adolphus Green of This City
"in Bad" in Franklin.

WAS RELEASED ON $200 BOND

Harry Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolphus Green of this city was arrested Saturday afternoon as he boarded a north-bound car on the Indianapolis, Columbus & Southern traction line, at Greenwood, on a charge of forgery. Loui Zeppenfeld, assistant cashier of the Franklin National bank of Franklin, says that young Green cashed a check for $350 on Isaac N. Lagrange. Mr. Zeppenfeld paid the money. Green had all of the money on his person when arrested. He was released Saturday night on $200 bond.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolphus Green recently moved to this city from Franklin. The boy is said to be about sixteen years old and has been staying in Franklin.

COMMITTEE MEETS TUESDAY

Indications Are That Crowd of 1,500
Visiting Party Workers Will be Here For Feast.

The organization has been perfected and efforts are being made to bring the largest crowd of Republicans that ever gathered together in Indiana outside of Indianapolis here for the evening of "Sherman day" for the big Republican love feast, that will be held here at that time. Indications are that the plans of local Republicans will not go awry if the weather is favorable as word is being received from all parts of Indiana that delegations are coming from far and near.

A committee consisting of John K. Gowdy, Fred A. Capp and Ernest B. Thomas will send out in a few days about fifteen hundred personal letters to the party workers of this district and many over the State urging them to be present at this time. Republicans in Indiana who have heard the news that the meeting is to be held here are already sending word that they will be here.

Conservative Republicans are estimating that at least fifteen hundred visiting Republicans will be here for the love feast and get-together meeting. With that many visitors in the city from all parts of Indiana it will be a rare opportunity for Rushville to "show off" as it were. Rushville has many things, including the new improvements of the last two years, that may be pointed to with pride. Rushville to exhibit her good qualities and her excellent opportunities will no doubt be taken advantage of.

It is thought that several special cars will be run over the Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction Company's lines in both directions and that excursions may be arranged to be run from nearby cities over the four railroads that operate here.

Replies have been received from several of the leading Republicans of the State and they are in hearty accord with the movement. The word is in all of the replies which the committee has received that Republicans are coming from everywhere with their G. O. P. banners unfurled and floating.

A meeting of the committee on arrangements, appointed Saturday by County Chairman Verne Norris, will be held at the clerk's office in the court house tomorrow morning at nine o'clock.

Speaking of the political meeting here the Connersville Examiner says:

Invitations to the big political meeting to be held at Rushville Oct. 10, are being sent out by James E. Watson and it is understood that about three hundred will be invited from this city.

The affair is to be made a gala occasion and a number of notables will be present on that date. Besides Vice-President Sherman, Joseph G. Cannon, former speaker of the House of Representatives, James Hemenway, former United States Senator, and John W. Kern have assured Mr. Watson they will be present. The day meeting will be a non-partisan affair, but the night meeting will be of a political nature and of course Mr. Kern and other Democrats will not take part.

It is predicted that quite a number of those who received invitations here will be present at the meeting. No doubt many people will take advantage of the occasion.

PROMINENT MAN DIES SUDDENLY

Robert M. Hutchinson Succumbs to Heart Trouble at His Home in Arlington.

DEATH COMES WHILE ASLEEP

Funeral Services Will be Held Tomorrow Afternoon in Christian Church.

Robert M. Hutchinson, 67 years old, a well known resident of Arlington, was found dead in bed yesterday morning at his home there. Death was due to heart trouble and it is supposed that he died between two and three o'clock in the morning, but it was not known to the family until he failed to answer the call for breakfast.

Mr. Hutchinson was a prominent farmer and stock raiser of this county. He was born in Franklin county, May 30, 1844. His youth was spent upon a farm in Butler county, Ohio, where his parents moved when he was ten years old.

Mr. Hutchinson served in the Civil war with Company M, Ninth Indiana Cavalry. He participated in the battles of Franklin and Nashville and served in other less important engagements, in all of which he discharged his duties in a manner becoming a loyal soldier. After the war he returned to Posey township, where he engaged in farming and in stock-raising and the grain business. He met with great success in the grain business, which he had conducted for many years in Arlington.

He was a leader of the Democratic party in Posey township and was a public spirited man. Mr. Hutchinson was a member of the Christian church, the G. A. R. and the I. O. O. F. lodge. He is survived by two children, Elmer and Miss Essie.

The funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at one-thirty o'clock in the Arlington Christian church, conducted by the Rev. E. S. Conner. Burial will take place in the East Hill cemetery there and will be in charge of the I. O. O. F. lodge.

HUSBAND IN JAIL; WIFE ASKS DIVORCE

Bessie Hickman Files Suit For Decrec From Walter, When he Gets in Bad.

SHE SAYS HE IS WANTED HERE

Bessie Hickman of 628 East Eighth street want a divorce from her husband because he is a fugitive from justice in Rush county and is now a prisoner in a county jail in Illinois, and incidentally because he treated her cruelly and was guilty of infidelity as alleged in the complaint, which Mrs. Hickman has filed in the circuit court. Mrs. Hickman says that she and Walter Hickman were married April 28, 1909 and lived together until April 19, 1911, at which time she alleges that her husband was guilty of grand larceny in this county and was compelled to flee. She declares in the complaint that Hickman has been in jail in Illinois on a larceny charge since last June. She charges that he was guilty of infidelity, choked and abused her and never contributed to her support. She asks an absolute divorce and the restoration of her name, Bessie Thompson.

SECOND DISEASE VICTIM

Shelby County Girl Expires of Infantile Paralysis.

Another victim, the second within the last three days, has succumbed to the dreaded disease, poliomyelitis, or infantile paralysis. Miss Daisy Cowan having died Friday afternoon after an illness which began July 1. Since the girl was stricken with the disease she has showed scarcely any improvement, the physicians in most all similar cases in the State being unable to find a successful way for fighting the disease. The little girl was the first in Shelby county to contract the disease and the medical profession attributed upon investigation that domestic animals about the Cowan home were suffering from a disease similar to that of the child.

COMMITTEE HELD MEETING TODAY

Plan to Confer With City Council
Not Later Than Wednesday on Factory Question.

WANT EVERY MEMBER PRESENT

The committee appointed by the Merchants Association to wait upon the city council in an effort to get water for fire protection for the Rushville Furniture Company, met this morning in the sheriff's office in the court house. About fifteen of the twenty-five members of the committee were present. It was decided that the committee should confer with the city council not later than Wednesday. It is the desire of the committee to meet the council when every member will be present. It is understood that one or more councilmen will be absent from the city and unable to attend the meeting tomorrow night and for this reason the committee will not go before the council at that time.

TWO REHEARSALS TO BE THIS WEEK

Final Arrangements Will be Made for
"Old Folks Concert," One Week
From Tonight.

A LARGE CROWD IS EXPECTED

Only two more full rehearsals of the "Old Folks Concert," which will be held in the coliseum in the city park one week from tonight will be held before the entertainment. They will be held tonight and Thursday night. In the meantime, however, rehearsals of the various numbers on the program will be held separately. J. Walter Wilson, director, says that a final roll call will be taken at the rehearsals this evening so as to determine just who will be in the concert. This is done due to the fact that the programs will be printed tomorrow.

The tickets which have been placed in the hands of the stockholders of the Rush County Chautauqua Association in blocks of ten are being sold fast and indicate that a capacity audience will greet the home talent artists. The proceeds of the entertainments will be used to pay off the balance due on the coliseum.

Occasional rain tonight and Tuesday. Cooler tonight except south portion.

GRAY-HAIRED CHUMS MEET

Granville E. Cowing, 87, and Charles
Woodward, 89, Devoted Friends
For 80 Years, Are Reunited.

LIVED HERE SIXTY YEARS AGO

Spend Day in Rushville, Going About
Streets Arm in Arm, Picking Out Landmarks.

Chums for eighty years, Granville E. Cowing of Muncie, eighty-seven and a half years old, and Charles Woodward of Detroit, Mich., eighty-nine years old, both formerly residents of this city, met here Saturday and Sunday by agreement and enjoyed a two days' visit with one another in reminiscence talks and happy recollections of their boyhood days, and the pleasant years of the past which are growing dim to them now. The two old men formed a strong companionship when they were seven and nine years old respectively, and after they were separated for a time and later happened to meet by the merest chance, they agreed to visit one another every year. The meeting here was their annual visit and the two venerable old men, who enjoy such a rare and sweet friendship, will not enjoy such a day as they did yesterday until another twelve-months rolls around.

Granville Cowing is an uncle of Joe Cowing and was his guest here. Mr. Woodward resides with his son in Detroit and came here Friday evening and stayed at a hotel until his friend and companion arrived here Saturday. The two men, arm in arm, and walking carefully, feeling their way with a cane and tottering occasionally, slowly wended their way about the business section of the city Saturday afternoon, viewing the wonderful changes that time has made in Rushville, and recalling the pictures of business Rushville fifty years ago when they quit the town for larger fields. They remembered few of the places and were unable to find many old landmarks about the city. Practically all of the buildings in the business section of the city have been erected in the last fifty years which accounts for facts that the two aged men found very few familiar structures standing.

Mr. Cowing was formerly editor, and for a time, publisher of the Rushville Republican during his ten years of life in this city. It was during the time that he was interested in the paper that the name of it was changed to the Republican. It was formerly known as the Whig. Mr. Woodward was a harness maker during his five years' stay here. He was a close observer and a persistent reader so that he was well versed in the leading events of the day in which he lived and moved. He was interested in literary work and contributed several reminiscence articles on Rushville at the time Jefferson Carr wrote some "Reminiscences" for the Republican. Mr. Woodward left Rushville in 1849, and had not been back here since that time until Saturday. Mr. Cowing left the city in 1849 and has been back here only three times since then.

The two old boys, for well might they be called boys while they are together, for their conversation is animated and the old sparkle or flicker of a life that has passed is back in their eye, first met in Fairfield, Ohio, when Mr. Cowing was seven years old and Mr. Woodward was nine years old. They became fast friends, it developing into a friendship that only death can dissolve. As boys they played together and romped and planned their mischievous pranks all apart from the

WELCOME CLOSE OF FRUIT SEASON

Rushville Grocers Say Heavy Frost

Which Would Kill Crop Would Cause no Regret.

HARD TO GUAGE THE DEMAND

Cellars in County Will Hold More Canned Fruit This Year Than Ever Before.

"A heavy frost which would kill the Rush county fruit would not cause any great regret on my part." This was the unusual statement of one of the local grocers in discussing the troubles of dealers in disposing of their share of the large crop of fruit harvested in the county this fall. While this stand is a rather selfish one, grocers can hardly be blamed for hesitating to purchase fruit which is likely to remain in their hands until spoiled and, if sold, goes at such a figure that the profit is not commensurate with the handling.

Continuing, the grocer who expressed this desire for an end of the fruit season said that, with such a large quantity of fruit of all kinds, it is difficult to gauge the probable demand. When a grocer buys peaches or anything of the kind, he can not tell whether his customers are going

GRAY HAIR MAKES YOU LOOK OLD

Use Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and Your Gray Hair Will Quickly Vanish.

Gray hair is a mark of age, and nothing that can be said as to its beauty will offset the disadvantages of this mark of age set upon your brow.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy darkens the hair and restores it to its youthful beauty. Our grandmothers and their grandmothers before them used sage and sulphur for darkening their hair. Nothing has ever been found more effective for this purpose than these two time-honored remedies, but Wyeth, a modern chemist, has combined the two with other ingredients, which makes a delightful dressing for the hair, and which not only removes every trace of dandruff but promotes the growth of the hair. It also stops the hair from falling out, and makes it beautiful.

All druggists are authorized to refund the money if it fails to do exactly as represented.

Don't neglect your hair and don't resort to old-time hair dyes. Get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur from your druggist to-day, and notice the difference in your hair, after a few days' use.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Special Agents, Hargrove and Mullin, Druggists, Rushville, Indiana.

You are not experimenting on yourself when you take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a cold as that preparation has won its greatest reputation and extensive sale by its remarkable cures of colds, and can always be depended upon. It is equally valuable for adults and children and may be given to young children with implicit confidence as it contains no harmful drug. Sold by All Dealers.

Millions of Folks Use Only Cascarets

They Never Have Headache, Biliousness, Sluggish Liver or Bowels or a Sick, Sour Stomach.

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches, how miserable and uncomfortable you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish intestines—you always get the desired results with Cascarets and quickly, too.

Don't let your stomach, liver and bowels make you miserable another moment; put an end to the headache, biliousness, dizziness, nervousness, sick, sour, gassy stomach, backache and all other distress; cleanse your inside organs of all the poison and effete matter which is producing the misery.

Take a Cascaret now; don't wait until bed time. In all the world there is no remedy like this. A 10-cent box means health, happiness and a clear head for months. No more days of gloom and distress if you will take a Cascaret now and then. All druggists sell Cascarets. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good gentle cleansing, too.

to come to him for their fruit or buy it direct from the farmers. If they purchase at the store, the price which can be charged there can not be high enough to give the dealer much profit. If they buy of the farmers, the grocer keeps his fruit until it is of no value and he loses the money he paid for it.

Especially do such conditions apply to peaches. The Rush county product is, in general, not up to the usual quality and, of course, can not command the price of the shipped-in product. The result is that there is no steady demand. Farmers sell much fruit direct to the consumer, and, when they haul part of the remainder of the big crop to the grocers, finds the latter unwilling to buy because a large part of the demand has already been satisfied. Thus, grocers are not over anxious to handle the Rush county peaches and prefer to handle the better quality shipped in, because there can be no competition there which would knock them out of buyers when not expected.

As did the extensive cherry crop, peaches are now flooding the market and growers face a difficulty of harvesting the crop as it ripens. Peaches have ripened all of a sudden in many orchards. To get them to market before becoming over-ripe and defective will be impossible in many localities. Some grocers are already advertising cut-rate prices and a number are willing to almost give them away for the picking to save the trees.

Despite the rise in the price of sugar, Rush county residents never enjoyed such a flourish of fruit as this year and many cellars will contain more canned fruit the coming winter than ever before. Apples are everywhere. Trees that had not borne any fruit to speak of in years this season are loaded down. There is much choice fruit in the crop, too.

CLEAN UP YOUR STOMACH

And Gas, Sourness, Dizziness, Headaches and Bad Dreams Will Go.

If you really want a clean, sweet, pure stomach, free from gas, sourness and distress, go to F. B. Johnson today and get a 50-cent box of MI-O-NA Stomach Tablets.

Take these little tablets according to directions, and if at the end of a week you are not brighter, stronger and more vigorous, just say so and get your money back.

For heaviness after eating, eructation, heartburn and that distressed feeling, MI-O-NA Stomach Tablets will give relief in five minutes.

Large box of MI-ONA STOMACH TABLETS, 50 cents at F. B. Johnson & Co. and druggists everywhere.

Biliousness is due to a disordered condition of the stomach. Chamberlain's Tablets are essentially a stomach medicine, intended especially to act on that organ; to cleanse it, to strengthen it, tone and invigorate it, to regulate the liver and to banish biliousness positively and effectually. JOSE PINO SUAREZ.

Candidate For Vice President of the Republic of Mexico.

© 1911, by American Press Association.

MEXICAN ELECTIONS PROCEEDED QUIETLY

No Serious Disorder Reported at Any Point.

Mexico City, Oct. 2.—Francisco I. Madero will carry the city by an overwhelming majority, according to the election returns. Pino Suarez, who is the candidate for vice president on the Madero ticket, will be successful, also.

Madero managers brought out a tremendous peon vote, but in spite of this it is said that no more than 60 per cent of the registered voters visited the polls. Election day was very quiet and there was not the slightest disorder here. Full reports from other sections of the republic have not been received, and it is not expected that anything will be known definitely regarding the outcome of the vice presidential contest until late this afternoon.

One member of the cabinet is reported as saying that there are nine states which give majorities against Madero, including Chihuahua, Jalisco and Vera Cruz, three of the most important states in the republic. While it is not doubted that Madero was elected, there is no doubt that some states will refuse to accept Suarez. There was much trouble in some places in the republic on account of the fact that voters who were not enrolled insisted upon the right to vote. Matters, however, were arranged without riot or bloodshed.

Charges that votes were bought are heard on all sides. The prevailing prices for a peon's vote all day was set at 25 cents.

He Took It to Heart.

Gary, Ind., Oct. 2.—Worried over his love affair with Miss Lucile Eschenbach of East Chicago, to whom he was to have been married this week, George Brown, twenty-one years old, an electrical engineer, ended his life by shooting himself through the heart. Friends of Brown say Miss Eschenbach wished to delay the wedding.

WAR STORIES BADLY MIXED

Roman Press Amazes Even the Yellowest of Pressdom.

NUMEROUS "FAKE" VICTORIES

These Astonishing Narratives Are Accepted by the Italians as Matters of Fact and With Much National Pride.—Turks Have Changed Tactics and Have Abandoned Tripoli, Retreating into the Interior.

Rome, Oct. 2.—The ministry of marine has informed the press that an Italian squadron met three Turkish battleships and several torpedo boat destroyers near to the entrance of the Dardanelles and that in the engagement which followed the battleships were sunk and the destroyers damaged.

Rome, Oct. 2.—The Roman press this morning announced a long series of naval victories which surprise even the yellowest of pressdom.

The Italians, however, accepted the "news" as a matter of fact and with true Italian pride.

Since the Tripoli and Malta cable is in the hands of the Italians, reliable information is lacking. The only positive facts are that the Turks have changed tactics, abandoned Tripoli and departed into the interior, where they intend to remain pending the arrival of reinforcements and that the Italians are now occupying Tripoli. The Italians are already showing anxiety lest the Turks swoop down on them.

An Act of Piracy.

To date the Italians have sunk four Turkish cruisers and five destroyers. These vessels were unaware that war had been declared, and it is considered that the Italian attack was an act of piracy. The vessels were sunk at Prevesa as told in previous dispatches, and the attack has incensed the Austrian government. Besides sinking the vessels, the Italian warships bombarded Prevesa and razed the fortifications.

In the event that Italy carries the war into Albanian territory, Austria has decided to protest in a drastic manner.

It is reported that Italians at Derna and Bengazi have been massacred.

May Result in Settlement.

Paris, Oct. 2.—A dispatch from Pera, which is a suburb of Constantinople, says that the German ambassador called on the grand vizier and was closeted with him for two hours. The ambassador departed with a frank expression of satisfaction. He is credited with making negotiations for terms of settlement between Turkey and Italy.

Incident Was Magnified.

Salonika, Oct. 2.—The Prevesa incident has been exaggerated in earlier dispatches. There has been no bombardment of the city and no Italian troops were landed. The Italian ships, finding the Turkish destroyers cruising outside, chased them and fired upon them. One of the destroyers was damaged and ran ashore.

Cable Communication Broken.

Malta, Oct. 2.—The cable to Tripoli has been broken. When the last telegram arrived it said that quiet prevailed, but that the bombardment of the town was to be expected. Reports that the Italians have landed are not believed here.

KILLED IN COLLISION

Big Four Engineer Met Death Within Sight of His Home.

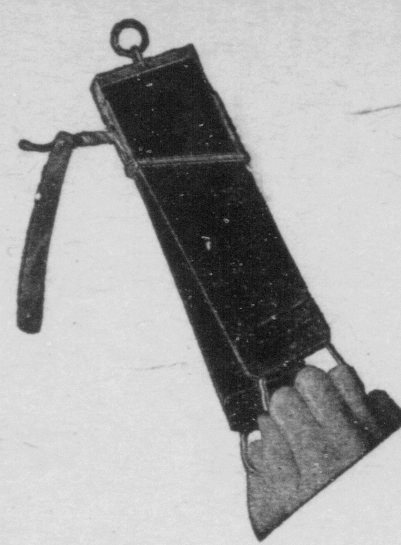

Mattoon, Ill., Oct. 2.—Engineer James Sampson was instantly killed in a collision within almost a stone's throw of his home, when a Big Four train, while crossing the Illinois Central tracks at the union station, was crashed into from the side by a freight engine drawing a heavy train on the Illinois Central. Engineer Sampson, driving the Big Four locomotive, was caught under the tender. Sampson had been running fast trains between Indianapolis and Mattoon for a number of years. A few seconds before the crash he passed his home in Mattoon and waved a greeting to his wife.

Diseased Children

By J. N. Hurty, State Health Com.

A weak, sickly child is indeed a sad plight. The putty complexion, the lackluster eyes, the thin hands, arms and legs, the weary look makes our heart bleed. But why is the diseased child? How came it to be diseased? Have the sins of the father descended? If they have, why is he not arrested and punished? If he were to slowly poison the child with a poison bought at the drug store, he would be promptly arrested and punished. What is the difference? Ask the child which poisoning he prefers. He will certainly tell you when he has suffered and saved his sores for a few years, that arsenic poisoning is preferable to blood poisoning. Why does not society class as disgraced him who bears hereditary poison in his blood, having wickedly put it there? And what a strange, in consistent thing is society, anyhow. It has one standard of morals for women and another for men. And, so long as this conditions prevails, so long will the blood sins of husbands descend upon their wives and children.

In the Orphan's Home at Indianapolis, are seventeen innocent children, all suffering from the hereditary malady which is worse than leprosy. They can not develop into strong, useful members of society. The disease prevents. They will be a burden to themselves and to the state all their lives and possibly produce more like themselves. Why does society permit such conditions? We strive to prevent fire, for it destroys property. Why not strive to prevent fire (disease) that burns up human beings? Is it our high intelligence which keeps us silent and inactive in this matter?

The law should require the prompt reporting of cases of the hereditary

GOUT

Like Rheumatism, Once in the System, Can be Expelled by the Prompt Use of Sulphur in Solution.

Not the old fashioned disgusting doses of a thick mixture of molasses and powdered sulphur, for the system cannot assimilate sulphur in that form. There's a better way—SULFOSOL, the new form of sulphur in solution—the form anxiously desired for hundreds of years by the medical profession and now first realized in SULFOSOL.

SULFOSOL is as soluble as sugar or salt, and it has brought so much joy and gladness to sufferers from Rheumatism, Gout, Eczema and stubborn skin troubles that the whole world should know of this wonderful remedy.

SULFOSOL is the great vitalizer of the blood, expeller of uric acid and other blood taints and conqueror of Gout and Rheumatism. Get it at your nearest druggist or write to the Sulfol Company, 72 Trinity Place, New York, for a free book on Gout, Rheumatism and Blood Diseases and the successful use of SULFOSOL in their treatment.

As a cleanser for the hair Sulfol Soap is supreme. 25 cents a cake at all druggists.

MANAGER FOR TAFT CAMPAIGN

Five Men Under Consideration by President's Friends.

SECOND PLACE A FACTOR.

Selection For Vice President Will Influence Choice—Must Appease Insurgents—Political Exigencies May Call For Sacrifice of Sherman.

Five men are under consideration by intimate friends of President Taft, men by whose advice he will be partly guided, for chairman of the Republican national committee and manager of the next presidential campaign.

These are Charles D. Hilles, secretary to the president; Secretary Fisher of the department of interior; William Loeb, collector of customs at New York; Frank H. Hitchcock, postmaster general, and Representative Calder of Brooklyn.

It is candidly admitted that it is entirely too early to select a man for manager of the campaign. The final selection will depend upon the lineup after the nomination of Mr. Taft.

Much will depend on the nomination of a vice presidential candidate along with Mr. Taft. To keep the insurgents in line as far as possible the disposition of the Republican leaders when Taft is nominated will be to concede some important post to the insurgents to aid in obtaining their support.

Whether this is to be the vice presidency or the chairmanship of the national committee remains to be determined from the situation at that time. If Vice President Sherman is again to go on the ticket with Mr. Taft there will be many advocates of giving the chairmanship to a progressive Republican.

If a progressive is nominated for second place on the ticket President Taft will select the best man he can among his acquaintances to handle the hunt for voters. Mr. Hilles has the inside track now. He has done clever political work so far, having shown tact and ability of a high order not only as secretary, but in the game of politics.

Mr. Hitchcock is not spoken of as frequently as heretofore because of repeated statements he has made to friends that he does not want to manage another campaign and that he earnestly wishes to get out of politics. He has practically turned the entire game of patronage over to Mr. Hilles and gives his time to the post-office department. But for the fact that the president has stated that he does not want to change secretaries again during his term Mr. Hilles would be a 10 to 1 shot as things now look, but the changes may again bring things to the point where Mr. Hitchcock may be forced to take charge at the request of the president.

Next to Mr. Hilles the man most mentioned is William Loeb. By reason of his long service with Mr. Roosevelt he is closely in touch with progressives all over the country. He would be acceptable to Roosevelt, and his loyalty to Taft is unquestioned. Many believe he would make an ideal man.

Representative Calder of Brooklyn is highly thought of by President Taft. He is a close friend of Mr. Roosevelt and a skillful man at the great game of political maneuvering. He has many friends who think his chances are good to handle the next campaign.

Secretary Fisher is discussed as a strong possibility, especially should Mr. Sherman be named for another term. He is recognized as a progressive, has the confidence of the progressive leaders of the west and is an able man. The only thing urged against him is his inexperience in large political matters. His aptitude, however, combined with recognized ability, may make him figure to a considerable extent in the calculations of the leaders as the chairman of the national committee next year.

TO SPELL FOR MONTHS.

Old Fashioned Bee Will Last From Fall to Spring.

An old fashioned spelling bee on the biggest scale ever attempted will have 14,500 contestants, pupils in the public schools of Kane county, Ill. The contest started with the beginning of the school year and will not be finished until next spring.

In the beginning the championship of each room will be decided, then the championship of each school and next the championship of the city or township. The leaders of the cities and townships will meet for the final "spell down."

CHAMPION EATER.

Boston Man Devoured Fifty-eight Ears of Corn in Less Than Two Hours.

Another world's record was smashed by Charles W. Glidden of Boston, champion eater, who devoured fifty-eight ears of corn in one hour and fifty-five minutes. The previous record was fifty-four ears.

Mr. Glidden got up from the table after having finished his task and, pulling down his white vest, remarked:

"I feel satisfied. I never really have before. I do not feel as if I could eat anything more for two weeks."

A NEBRASKA FLOOD DELAYS PRESIDENT

Taft Got Into Omaha Twelve Hours Late.

Omaha, Oct. 2.—The Taft special was marooned for nine hours in the Missouri prairies, the deluge that flooded four states having halted traffic from Omaha to Kansas City and delaying the president's arrival in this city twelve hours.

Only the precaution of the Missouri Pacific in anticipating the hundredth chance saved the president's train from derailment in a washout nine miles north of Atchison, Kan. For most of the day Sunday the president's train was the only one running between Omaha and Kansas City. Trestles were built over the tracks above the surging mass of water that buried the Nebraska meadows, and trains were made up to test the track before the Taft special was allowed to continue its journey. For miles at a stretch the water ran up to the tracks and flooded over them. No rock bedding could have lasted a minute before the rush of water. Houses with the water half up to their windows were passed and entire cornfields, fences and roads were submerged. Families with wagons full of household furniture rescued from the flood stood stranded in the mud on the highest points of the road as the president's train passed by. At every dangerous point the president's consent was asked before the trip was continued. Despite the precautions of the railroad officials and their assurances that there was no danger, it was the most thrilling ride that the president has been given in all the hundred thousand miles of his traveling about the country since he became president.

Stabs a Sleeping Woman.

Ashland, Ky., Oct. 2.—Mrs. W. P. Ward was stabbed three times and badly injured by an assailant who entered the room in which she was sleeping. Her little daughter was awakened by her groans and screamed. The would-be murderer escaped. There is no clue to his identity.

Canal Traffic Held Up.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 2.—Continued and heavy rains have caused several serious breaks in the Illinois-Michigan canal and traffic has been stopped. Twenty or more boats are being held up on either side of the breaks.

Held on Arson Charge.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 2.—G. W. Kenney, an Illinois dentist, and his wife were held for the grand jury to answer charges of arson. It is alleged they burned Dr. Kenney's office to collect $700 insurance.

Special McNamara Verdict.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 2.—A special verdict of 125 possible jurors for the trial of the McNamara brothers, alleged dynamiters, has been drawn by Judge Bordwell. The trial will begin on Oct. 11.

Fatally Injured by Auto.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 2.—Major Colburn, secretary of the Chickamauga national park commission, was run down by a negro chauffeur and probably fatally hurt.

Mail Order Concerns Pay Big Salaries

There is practically no limit to the salary that the average mail order concern is willing to pay clever writers of advertisements, catalogues and letters. Men or marked ability along these lines can usually name their own terms. One hundred dollars a week is regarded as only a fair salary for a good mail order writer. Many make $200 a week, and some get even $500 a week.

These facts were made public at a recent investigation wherein a well-known catalogue house was made defendant on the charge of fraudulent use of the United States mails. This concern had been telling the public how, by dealing direct with the consumer, they could sell at half price. The explanation was, that since they did not sell through dealers, their selling expense was immensely cut down. Then the question came up as to what their expense was in selling, and it developed that they were spending huge amounts not only for paper, stationery, printed and advertising (a single mail order advertisement inserted once in one paper, sometimes costs $5,000), but for experts who are able to write "come on," as they call it, to bring in trade.

The upshot of the investigation is, it shows clearly why a mail order house many miles away may sell goods under the nose of a local dealer. It isn't because mail order houses give better values, but because they hire the cleverest writersalesmen that money can buy. No local retail dealer could afford to pay $10,000 to $25,000 a year for an advertising man. His business is not big enough. And yet, if he had the services of such an expert and gave the fellow permission to exaggerate all he pleased, no mail order house in the world could take business away from him.

The beautiful pictures and alluring descriptions found in mail order catalogues are no doubt regarded by their instigators as wonderful creations, but it is hard on the man or woman who relies on such misrepresentation and sends money away in the hope of getting bargains.

Not long ago a manufacturer who had been selling his product by mail came to the conclusion that he would change over to the dealer plan of selling, and cut out the mail order end. This he did. As a mail order concern he had been advertising his goods at "one-half the dealer's price." But strangely enough, he is now selling the identical same product through dealers at the SAME PRICE AS HE SOLD IT BY MAIL.

The manufacturer still makes his profit, yet there has been no advance over the original mail order price.

How does that happen? Let some $25,000-a-year expert mail order advertisement writer "explain" it.

Things usually even themselves up in this world. What the mail order customer saves in avoiding dealer's profits he more than pays back in the forming of huge salaries to clever word painters and artists in the employ of mail order concerns. The jurisdiction man or woman buys his merchandise at home, because it is cheaper in the end, and the many troubles, inconveniences, delays and aggravations connected with mail order buying are avoided.

Needless to say, our merchants here deserve our patronage. They extend to us every accommodation they can, and stand ready to make good on every sale they make. They pay taxes here, and are helping to build up our city and the surrounding territory. Let's keep our money at home, where we can buy just as much, do it with less trouble and incidentally help our fellow townsmen.

So long as there are youngsters full of fun And baby faces pink with health and glee There will be daddies when their work is done Who find the world a good old place to be. So long as there are babies for old arms And soft and downy cheeks for men to press The world will never want for other charms. There'll always be a cure for hopelessness. So long as bright-eyed babies wait to see The tired and weary fathers homeward come Make up your mind this world will never be A valley wholly desolate and glum. So long as there are babies here to play, To smooth with little hands the brow of care, To kiss and laugh our troubles all away, There will be men to struggle on and dare The blows of fate, undaunted, unafraid; There will be daddies brave enough to smile Though on their shoulders burdens great are laid. The Hunting Season.

With the hunter's moon and October frosts, the game laws begin to come off in several States. But the enormous increase in the number of hunters has depleted many covers where game used to abound.

Where the farmers' boy used to find wild life within sight of his father's barn, the successful hunting trip of today is apt to mean an expensive and tiresome railroad journey.

There is not game enough to go around until you get a long distance from the haunts of man. The rapacious demand for the great metropolitan hotels, the commercialized murder of the pot hunter, the destruction by the more ignorant alien, these are causes that are leading hunting to be an almost forgotten sport among those unable to afford the price of the railway ticket.

The sportsmanlike sentiment of the future will require metropolitan epicures, if they must have game suppers, to get out in the woods on their own account and take pot luck with the natives. Hunting serves a useful purpose in drawing tired men into the healing influences of the forests. But where it merely fills the purse of some ne'er-do-well and tickles the palate sated with the luxuries of city restaurants, there is no compensation given the public for the slaughter of wild life that is common property.

A new comet is discovered, but since the Halley fake last year, comet insurance can be had cheap.

Italy and Turkey are showing their teeth at each other, but ultimatums cost the tax payers little except the typewriter's bill.

As 40,000 share lots are being tossed back and forth on the stock exchange, the fellow who buys five shares on margin can not expect that his interests will be carefully looked after.

Food prices are the highest ever, and the politicians that have been promising to reduce the cost of living have got to do something more than hire clerks to add up long rows of statistics.

It's not difficult to tell who is wearing the new fall bonnets in the moving picture theaters. They never take them off.

The price of potatoes has descended, thanks to the potatoes, but we understand that eggs are still some cents a dozen, rotten or the pure food kind.

All of which recalls the story of the man who swore that he would not get a haircut until the price of commodities was less. In a few months he had a bald head, this being a fair example of providence descending upon a presumptions mortal who dared to question the right of monopoly.

Charlottesville Ministers Adopt Resolutions Against Such a Practice.

R. L. Black, pastor of the Methodist, Mearl Wilson of the Friends, and Gus Thompson of the Disciple churches at Charlottesville have resolved as follows: "In view of the fact that a great deal of confusion and disappointment accrue to all parties concerned, as a result of funerals held on the Lord's Day, we, the ministers of Charlottesville, hereby express to the public our decided disapproval of the same, and also give notice that in the future neither of us shall dismiss our services for the same unless good reasons exist for doing so."

GRAY-HAIRED
CHUMS MEET

rest of the boys of the community. That companionship has never grown cold. It has never even simmered and died out but has become stronger in the breast of each venerable old man at each meeting.

They were boys together and grew into manhood in the same community. They have been fast and devoted friends ever since that time. They always seemed to have something in common which probably accounts for this friendship which is as uncommon as any other case in the memory of most people. Their likes and dislikes were always similar and their modes of thought were always the same. They were always agreeable to one another and never did an unpleasant thing pass between them. In fact they have been brothers all through life in every sense of the word and they are bound to be the same loving friends until they leave this earth and its troubles.

The two men were separated in early manhood and lost all trace of one another. It was after Mr. Cowing had become connected with the Whig here that Mr. Woodward happened to stop off in this city and the two men met on the street quite by accident. Imagine the surprise as well as pleasure, the two conflicting emotions attempting to gain the upper hand, when the two friends and boon companions met. Then and there their old comradeship was revived and they were together almost constantly during Mr. Woodward's four years' stay in this city. Since he left here they have been visiting one another every year for four years. Nothing has ever deterred Mr. Woodward in his annual trip. For four years, since he has passed the four score mark, he lived with his son in Boston and during every one of those years he travelled all of that distance from Boston to Muncie to call on Mr. Cowing.

Mr. Cowing came to this city in 1839, and remained for ten years which is the only time that he ever lived here. Mr. Woodward was a resident here only four years, from 1845 to 1849. Mr. Cowing took up the printer's trade soon after his arrival in this city and learned it under General P. A. Hackleman, who was then part owner and editor of the Whig. The paper was printed in what was then known as the Frazee property which still stands on the south side of the public square. The building is now occupied by the Eagle restaurant. Mr. Cowing says that it does not appear to be the same now as it has been "decapitated" and remodelled extensively. He learned the printing trade under the Hacklemans and was associated with them and the Whig and Republican all during his ten years' residence in this city.

"Yes, I hold the members of the Hackleman family in high esteem," said Mr. Cowing Saturday. "I lived in their home and it was a pleasant life that I had, too. I hope to see some of the members of the family during my short visit here. I was a member of Gen. P. A. Hackleman's family practically for eight years." "There are just three people in Rushville today who were here when I left, back in 1849," he continued. "Who are they?" was asked him. "They are Jefferson Carr, Ed Wolfe and the mother of Dr. Frank Hackleman."

"But Mrs. Hackleman is dead," he was informed.

"Is that so?" he questioned. "I never heard that news. Well there are just two people of the olden days in Rushville who will remember me when I lived here."

Soon after Mr. Cowing arrived in this city in 1839, he was employed in the Whig office. In a few years he had an interest in the paper and was a part owner. In 1843 R. F. Brown bought out Hackleman's interest and he and Mr. Cowing published the paper together. Later Brown sold out to Mr. Cowing who was sole proprietor for a time. In 1846 a man by the name of Cox bought an interest in the paper and a year later R. F. Brown bought his interest back from Cox and he and Mr. Cowing were publishers and Mr. Cowing editor until Mr. Cowing left here. It was back in 1843 before the Hacklemans sold out, that the name of the paper was changed from the Whig to the Republican.

After leaving this city Mr. Cowing went to Washington, D. C., where he worked eight months in the Washington Leader office, the leading newspaper of the Capital. While employed on that paper, Mr. Cowing became acquainted with some of the nation's most prominent men. John G. Whittier, the poet, was a frequent caller at the office, Mr. Cowing said, as was Congressman Hale of New Hampshire and Congressman George W. Julian. Mr. Cowing recalled the names of many other well known national characters of that time with whom he was acquainted.

It was in the Leader office that the first edition of Uncle Tom's Cabin was published. That publishing house gave the great story, which stirred the nation as nothing ever did, to the world first. Mr. Cowing said that the excitement ran high at that time over the slavery question, as it was only a short time before the Civil war broke out.

Mr. Cowing was a friend of Lincoln's and had hoped to go to Oregon with him when he was appointed governor. Mr. Lincoln refused the appointment and Mr. Cowing never had the opportunity to go West as he had hoped he would have.

"But my friends told me to remain in Washington," continued Mr. Cowing, "as a place would be open there in a very short time. Their prediction was right for it was not long until I received an appointment in the treasury department. I was employed there for seven years, but finally was compelled to resign on account of failing health. I was taken sick from the excessive use of tobacco. I tried to hold on to the position but found it impossible. I came out to Delaware county, Indiana, for a visit with my father, and when I saw that I was not going to regain my health, I sent in my resignation."

Mr. Cowing had a farm in Delaware county near that of his father and he retired to that with the hope of regaining his health. That he did, as is evidenced by his excellent physical condition today at the age of eighty-seven years. He lived on his farm until four years ago when he moved into Muncie.

Mr. Cowing holds his two sons, Dr. Hugh Cowing and Lewis Cowing of Muncie in high regard. He speaks proudly of them and praises them for the manner in which they care for him. "Lewis will not allow me to go out alone," he said, "for he is afraid I can't get around well, but I am still able to go about by myself. I fell and broke my leg eight years ago but that does not bother me much now."

Mr. Cowing's age does not hinder him in his literary pursuits, or in anything else in fact, because he is busy most of his time. He is an excellent scribe and keeps books for his son, Dr. Hugh Cowing, who is health commissioner of Delaware county. He contributes many articles on timely subjects to the Muncie papers. Mr. Cowing has been interested in the cultivation of fruit for a number of years and until a few years ago had one of the biggest strawberry farms in the State at his place in Delaware county.

The two aged chums attracted attention here on the streets Saturday. They walked over the city, picking out familiar spots and commenting on the city in general. They were unable to find many people whom they knew, but they were introduced to and conversed with decedents of their old friends here. Mr. Woodward has long flowing white hair and appears to be old, but Mr. Cowing apparently is not as old as he really is.

Attempt Will be Made to Hold Events
This Week.

The road races did not materialize as it was thought they would at the fair ground Saturday afternoon and it is planned to hold them at the fair ground next Saturday afternoon at the same time, one o'clock. All owners of green trotters and pacers in the county are urged to participate. Trained horses are barred so that some good sport is assured. Saturday there were six starters in one event that was raced. It resulted as follows: Bert Eakins, first, Pete Johnson, second, and Henry Clevenger, third. Henry Clevenger is the manager of the matinee races.

Daffydil Doings Down
In Dippy Dell

It was down on the old base ball lot that this mid-summer's tale was enacted. It was the ninth inning, two men were down and there was a man on first. The score was one to nothing in favor of the visiting boys and the bleachers were sizzling with excitement. Who should walk out to the plate but Dennis O'Neil with a young tree swinging at the end of his left arm. Dennis faced the pitcher, a young thing from down Clarksburg way, with the air of one who is as certain of himself as Charley Alger is that Perkins street will be paved. The first one was below his knees. The second one was too wide and Dennis let the third one go by. Curses, it was a strike! The fourth ball pitched was too close to Dennis and he whiffed at the fifth one. Only one more chance and the grand stand was bulging with emotion. The pitcher wound up deliberately and cut the plat with the fatal ball. Dennis swatted it to the skies. After he had circled the bases and had set down on the bench to wait until the ball came down, "Hot Stuff" Bell rushed into the pitcher's hole and expostulated at length: "If Charles Saunders to the edge of town could you say Charles Skip-ton?"

Throw the ropes over the limb. He ought to be hung long ago.

IS MARY SWEET
MARRIED AGAIN?

Granted Divorce From James F. Sweet Last Week on Condition That She Pay Costs.

IS THOUGHT TO BE WEDDED

If Mary Sweet is married for the fourth time in her life, as her mother believes she is, she is guilty of bigamy as she was granted a divorce in the circuit court last week on the condition that she pay the costs in the case which she has not done yet. The mother of Mrs. Sweet called at the clerk's office today and asked if her daughter had been married here. The clerk told her that she had not. The mother said that her daughter had been married three times and she thought she has just been married the fourth time. She was given a divorce from James F. Sweet only last week on the condition that the costs be paid by her. No license has been issued to her here.

Greensburg News: Clyde Kitchen and his neighbor, H. Moore of Rush county, were here Friday morning en route home from Edinburg, where they bought some mule foot hogs. Clyde had a few of them and is satisfied from a thorough test given that they are immune from hog cholera, and he also found from a sad experience that his other breed of hogs was not immune.

Shelbyville Dispatch Says That I. & C. is Making Survey For Extension Through New Salem.

IS NOT EVEN CONTEMPLATED

In the light of the interview which Charles L. Henry, president of the Indianapolis and Cincinnati traction company gave out last Friday in regard to the extension of the lines to Cincinnati, the dispatch from Shelbyville, published in the Indianapolis News, that a survey is being made through New Salem and other towns in that section to Harrison, Ohio, from whence the line will be run on into Cincinnati, is not given much credence. It is known here that such a survey is not being made and Mr. Henry says that that route was never even considered. The dispatch says:

It is said that both Greensburg and Connersville may be cut out of the extension to Cincinnati to be made by the Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction Company. Charles L. Henry, president of the company, J. C. Shirk and other directors are having a survey made from Rushville passing through New Salem, Andersonville, Laurel, Metamora, Brookville and on to Harrison, O., connecting with a line there that enters Cincinnati. If this is done, then the line between Rushville and Connersville will be only a branch line and not a part of the main line.

WANTS CASE RE-OPENED.

New Castle Courier: Noel C. Milleson, a well known resident of Knightstown, has filed a petition in the Henry circuit court to re-open the decree which gave his wife Ida C. Milleson a divorce. Milleson alleges in his petition that the case was tried without his knowledge. He denies all of the allegations on which the divorce was granted.

AMUSEMENTS

The Palace will have the usual two reels of pictures tonight. "That City Feller" is a Selig drama, telling a story of a dog's fidelity to his master. The Lubin film, "The Stranger in Camp" is a western drama. It is a story of how a long suffering wife finds happiness at last in place of misery.

The Portola offers for tonight a Pathe and Essanay picture. The Pathe, "The Tragic Wedding" is a Mexican story, and the natural settings to which the story is laid is said to be beautiful. A young man is about to be forced into an unwelcome marriage by the terms of her father's will. She writes to her lover, a gypsy, telling him of her plight and he and his band rescue her as she is on her way to the marriage. The Essanay, "The Clown's Baby" is a dramatic story of life under the "big white top." The scenes of this drama are laid "on the road" with a circus and are very realistic.

At English's in Indianapolis Ethel Barrymore will be seen tonight and tomorrow night in "The Witness for the Defense," a play produced and played last season in London, where it was one of the year's popular successes. The drama recites a story of serious import, The first act takes place in India, on the outskirts of an ancient city. Here a woman is mistreated by her husband, finally turns upon him and, seizing a rifle, aims the weapon at his breast as the curtain descends. Subsequently a widow, Mrs. Ballantyne, the wife of the first act, comes to England and engages herself to marry Richard Hazelwood. In the meantime, there has been a trial and Mrs. Ballantyne, charged with the murder of her husband, has been acquitted. The verdict in her favor was obtained largely through the evidence of an English barrister, Thresh, who, knowing the woman's guilt, perjures himself. To him, later, Mrs. Ballantyne comes, and Thresh insists that she can not marry Hazelwood until she has confessed her crime to the man who loves her. She implores him to be silent, but he tells her that there can be no happiness so long as the deception continues. He remains firm, despite her pleas, and the woman, in the end, is obliged to tell her story to Hazelwood and by him is forgiven.

Kyrle Bellew follows Miss Barrymore at English's, playing "The Mollusc," which will be seen Wednesday night. Hubert Henry Davies is the author of the play and it, like Miss Barrymore's medium, was first produced and played in London where it was a popular success of two seasons ago. The story is somewhat whimsical, presenting a plot of humorous character. The incidents have to do with a young wife who has fallen into the unfortunate habit of looking, very selfishly, upon the members of her household as slaves to do her every wish. The methods pursued by her husband and his brother, in an attempt to persuade her to adopt a fairer course, form the basis for the comedy. In Mr. Bellew's support are Isabel Irving, Jane Lanrel, Frank Goldsmith and others.

Don't Kindle A Fire Every Morning This Winter

Ever get up on a cold morning and find the fire in your Base Burner all dead around the edges---a dim red spot of fire in the center?

The house was chilly, and it was a mighty disagreeable job to get up a good fire with only a few live coals to start it with.

You will never have any trouble like that with a FAVORITE BASE BURNER. The Favorite will hold fire longer and more evenly than any other Base Burner made. It will keep the temperature in your home even, day and night. When you wake in the morning your house will be as warm as when you went to bed.

You'll find the reason in the flues and perfect fitting of the Favorite. Every door, joint and frame is paper tight.

The Favorite has held fire continuously for five successive days and nights without going out. Let us explain why the Favorite will save you full one-half in fuel bills and throw out more heat.

ACT QUICKLY

Delay Has Been Dangerous in Rushville.

Do the right thing at the right time. Act quickly in time of danger. Backache is kidney danger. Doan's Kidney Pills act quickly. Plenty of evidence to prove this.

Harrison Levi, 931 North Sexton street, Rushville, Ind., says: "I have nothing but praise for Doan's Kidney Pills, for they have been of great benefit to me. I was subject to attacks of kidney trouble and no doubt the complaint was brought on by the hardships I endured while in the war. I had severe pains in my back and the kidney secretions were irregular in passage. This weakness disturbed my rest and I knew that something must be done. Three years ago Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention and procuring a box at F. B. Johnson & Co.'s Drug Store I began their use. In a short time the backache and kidney weakness disappeared and I was in much better health. I cannot say that I am completely cured, but I know that I can rely on Doan's Kidney Pills for relief. I have previously given a public statement in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills and I gladly endorse them again."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

was too strong to be shaken by this woman's light words.

"I suppose if she wasn't from my town—" At his words the vision of Letty Lane with the coral strands on her dress, came before his eyes, and he said honestly: "But I do take an interest in her just the same, and she's going to pieces, that's clear. Something ought to be done."

The Duchess of Breakwater was very much annoyed.

"Are you going to talk about her all the time?" she asked with sharp sweetness. "You are not very flattering, Dan."

And he returned peacefully, "Why, I thought you might be able to help her in some way or another."

"Me!" She laughed aloud. "Me help Letty Lane? Really—"

"Why, you might get her to sing out here," he suggested. "That would sort of get hold of her; women know how to do those things."

His preposterous simplicity overwhelmed her. She stirred her tea, and said, controlling herself, "Why, what on earth would you have me to say to Letty Lane?"

"Oh, just be nice to her," he suggested. "Tell her to take care of herself and to brace up. Get some nice woman to—"

The duchess helped him. "To reform her?"

"Do her good," the boy said gently. "You're too silly for words. If you were not such a hopeless child I would be furious with you. Why, my dear boy, she would laugh in your face and in mine."

As the duchess left the tea-table she repeated: "Is this what you came up from London to talk to me about?"

And at the touch of her dress as she passed him—at the look she gave him from her eyes, Dan flushed and said honestly: "Why, I told you that she was the only thing that kept me from thinking about you all the time."

CHAPTER IX.

Disappointment.

Dan Blair had not been back of the scenes at the Gaiety since his first call on the singer. Indeed, though he had told the duchess he pitied Miss Lane, he had not been able to approach her very closely, even in his own thoughts. When she first appeared on his horizon his mind was full of the Duchess of Breakwater, and the singer had only hovered round his more profound feelings for another woman. But Letty Lane was an atmosphere in Dan's mind which he was not yet able to understand. There was so little left that was connected with his old home, certainly nothing in the British Isles, excepting Ruggles, and to the young man everything from America had its value. Decidedly the nice girl of whom he had spoken to Gordon Galorey, the print-frocker, bonneted type, the ideal girl that Dan would like to marry and to spoil, had not crossed his path. The Duchess of Breakwater did not suggest her, nor did any of the London beauties. Dan's first idea was beginning to fade.

He left Osdone Park on protest and returned the same night to London, and all the way back to town tried to register in his mind, unused to analysis, his experience with the Duchess of Breakwater on this last visit.

He had experienced his first disappointment in the sex, and this disappointment had been of an unusual kind. It was not that he had been turned down or given the mitten, but he had seen one woman turn another down. A woman had been mean, so he put it, and the fact that the Duchess of Breakwater had refused to lend a moral hand to the singer at the Gaiety hurt Dan's feelings. Then, as soon as his enthusiasm had calmed, he saw what a stupid ass he had been.

A duchess couldn't mix up with a comic opera singer, of course. Still, he mused, "she might have been a little nicer about it."

The education his father had given him about them was put to the test now; the girl he had dreamed of, "the nice girl," well, she would have had a tenderer way with her in a case such as this! Back of Dan's hurt feelings, there was a great deal on the Duchess of Breakwater's side. She had not done for herself yet. She hadn't fetched him nearly up to the altar for nothing, and back of his disapproval, there was a long list of admirations and looks, memories of many tete-a-tetes and of more fervent kisses which scored a good deal in the favor of Dan's first woman. The Duchess of Breakwater had gone boldly on with Dan's unfinished education, and he really thought he loved her, and that he was in honor bound to see the thing through.

That evening, once more in the box he had taken all to himself, he listened to "Mandalay," carried away with the charm of the music and carried away by the singer. He was in the box nearest the stage and seemed close to her, and he imagined that under her paint he could see her pallor and how thin she was. Nothing, however, in her acting or in her voice revealed the least fatigue. Blair had obtained a card of entrance to the theater, which permitted him to circulate freely behind the scenes, and although as yet the run of his visits had not been clear, this night he had a purpose. Dan stood not far from the corridor that led to Letty Lane's room, and saw her after her act hurriedly cross the stage, a big white shawl wrapping her slender form closely. She was as thin as a candle. Her woman Higgins followed closely after her, and as they passed Dan, Letty Lane called to him gaily: "Hello, you! What are you hanging around here for?"

And Dan returned: "Don't stand here in the draft. It is beastly cold."

"Yes, Miss," her woman urged, "don't stand here."

But the actress waited nevertheless and said to Dan: "Who's the girl?"

"What girl?"

"Why, the girl you come here every night to see and are too shy to speak to. Everybody is crazy to know."

Letty Lane looked like a little girl herself in the crocheted garment her small hands held across her breast. Dan put his arm on her shoulder without realizing the familiarity of his gesture:

"Get out of this draft—get out of it quick, I say," and pushed her toward her room.

"Gracious, but you are strong." She felt the muscular touch, and his hand flat against her shoulder was warm through the wool.

"I wish you were strong. You work too darned hard."

Her head was covered with the coral cap and feather. Dan saw her billowy skirt, her silken hose, her little coral shoes. She fluttered at the door which Higgins opened.

"Why haven't you been to see me?" she asked him. "You are not very polite."

"I am coming in now."

"Not a bit of it. I'm too busy, and it is a short entrance. Go and see the girl you came here to see."

Dan thought that the reason she forbade him to come in was because Prince Poniatowsky waited for her in her dressing-room. It was his first jealous moment, and the feeling fell on him with a swoop, and its fangs fastened in him with a stinging pain. He stammered:

"I didn't come to see any girl here but you. I came to see you."

"Come tomorrow at two, at the Savoy."

Before Dan realized his own precipitation, he had seized the door-handle as Letty Lane went within and was about to close her room against him, and said quickly:

"I'm coming right in now."

"Why, I never heard of such a thing," she answered sharply, angrily; "you must be crazy! Take away your hand!" And hers, as well as his, seized the handle of the door. Her small ice-cold hand brought him to his senses.

"I beg your pardon," he murmured confusedly. "Do go in and get warm if you can."

But instead of obeying, now that the rude young man withdrew his importuning, Miss Lane's hands fell from the knob, and close to his eyes she swayed before him, and Dan caught her in his arms—went into her room, carrying her. He had been wrong about Prince Poniatowsky; save for Higgins, the room was empty. The woman, though she exclaimed, showed no great surprise and seemed prepared for such a fainting spell. Dan laid the actress on the sofa and then the dresser said to him: (To be continued.)

TRIBUTE TO PAWPAWS.

The pawpaw is native to the Wabash valley. It formerly grew luxuriantly hereabouts and it is through the pernicious influence of this plant, historians affirm, that the Miami Indians were sunk in the lowest savagery.

Among the early Indian tribes, the pawpaw was eaten as a sort of penance. It was justly regarded as a thing of ill omen, and many were the weird tales related in the smoky tepees of its evil effects upon the minds of man. The old Indian legend has it that pawpaw eaters, like lotus eaters of an earlier mythology, became mad. This has been proved a mistake by modern science. It is now held that a man who eats a pawpaw is necessary mad to do so—that the conditions provokes the act.

The news dispatches say that the "finest" of Indiana's pawpaws have been sent to President Taft. This seems an act of high treason, or at best, of anarchy. Fortunately there is no likelihood of the president trying to eat one of the things.

The pawpaw is neither fruit nor vegetable nor flower. It is an alien among plant life. No poet has ever inscribed lines to the pawpaw, nor has any painter sought to put its unlovely semblance upon canvas. In all Indiana there is not so much as a photograph of one of the things. It stands today without a defender. It is headed for oblivion, which has long yawned for it.

DEATH LIST MAY NEVER BE KNOWN

Enumerators Checking Over Inhabitants of Austin.

BODIES SWEEP FOR MILES

The Destruction of the Factory Town of Austin, Pa., by the Breaking of a Dam Which Crossed the Little Valley in Which the Town Nestled, Practically Was Complete, and the Death List May Reach 500.

Austin, Pa., Oct. 2.—Jamming its battering ram of cordwood through the valley where the town of Austin lay Saturday, a pillar of water swept a clean path for an even mile. There it smashed a broadside against the full length of the principal street, gathering up as it went the boards that a minute before were houses, and heaved the splintered fragments against the more substantial line of brick stores.

Brick and steel gave way almost as completely as had the less solid construction. But the wave was hindered long enough to pile up to the height of a three-story building the mass of torn debris. Then the flood rippled ahead, swirling over the few small buildings that lay below until it came to the railroad shops, where cars and locomotives were flipped onto their sides and stripped of their wheels and roofs, and where the natural gas pipes in the engine rooms were scraped off. Then came the fire that finished the job in the yards and in the nearby kindling shops. After that the wall of water kept on going through the valley until it had brought down all but four of the houses in Costello, the village that lies three miles below. Estimates of the loss of life lies between 400 and 500. Enumerators of the last census have begun the task of going through the houses where the homeless ones have been taken. It is only by elimination, the authorities say, that anything like an accurate count can be made. The work of clearing has been begun, but it will be a long task, and even the census takers' work cannot be completed for many days, as scores are missing.

Safety on the Hillside.

But fifty buildings remain in what was Austin and these are perched on the hillside. All five churches were destroyed and the Austin National bank is the only building that still stands in the town below. The schoolhouse on the hill has been converted into a morgue and it is crammed with bodies. Bodies have been seen as far as ten miles south of Austin, and a great many of them will never be recovered, as they will be swept down the Susquehanna river. The flood has covered up everything with wreckage, and not even a foundation or cellar remains. Except for the bank building the site of Austin is a leveled mass of bodies and bits of wreckage. Fires are still burning among the piles of drift, and many bodies are being burned. At the Buffalo and Susquehanna carshops a great pile of bodies is believed to be beneath the debris.

Relief trains have been sent from Williamsport, Port Allegany, St. Marys, Olean, Corning, Galeton and Coudersport. Three carloads of provisions and clothing were sent from Williamsport. All the cities in the state are sending in contributions to Austin. The tents sent by the state proved a godsend. The rain continues and the injured have been sheltered by the tents. The department also sent a relief train with fifteen physicians and twenty nurses. Many of those who escaped from the wall of water and the fires are lying at the point of death from terrible injuries they have received.

Flood Carried Far.

Word received here from Costello, a small village ten miles south of Austin, states that ten of its residents lost their lives in the flood, which descended from Austin to them. Fifty buildings were washed away.

There were countless cases of close and narrow escapes. The wave that hit Main street destroyed a line of business places such as any town of a little less than 3,000 has for its population. Today the broken walls of the western end and the shattered sides of the bank, where the postoffice was located, too, were all that stood in the waste. The rest were covered with great heaps of boards and plaster.

The dam, that split into eight pieces, just as a row of dominoes will bulge apart, was not an old structure. It was placed below an antique wooden crib a trifle over two years ago.

The examination of Farley Gannett, engineer of the state water supply commission, showed that one chunk of concrete weighing perhaps a ton and a half, had been projected downstream for 100 feet. Another much longer section lay sixty feet out of the plumb line of the dam. Mr. Gannett was not willing to say what he thought had caused the break. He will make a close inspection of the designs before he makes his report to the water supply commission. The dam was owned by the Bayliss Pulp Paper company, which has its headquarters in Poughkeepsie, N. Y. The vast amount of water confined above the dam was used in the processes of washing pulp after its chemical treatments before it is turned into paper.

ROYALISTS FAILED IN BOLD ATTEMPT

Portuguese Uprising Quickly Nipped in the Bud.

Oporto, Oct. 2.—Defeat and imprisonment was the lot of over 300 royalists who attempted to seize Oporto.

The attempt to take the city began at 4 a. m. on Saturday. Two hundred men were smuggled into the Crystal Palace of Pleasure, near the Sixth infantry barracks. It is believed that they are royalists. A captain of the palace, alleging that royalists had tempted him to poison the commander of the regiment, informed the republican secret service. Troops were placed about the palace and it was fired upon. The royalists were then hidden in the grounds. Quick-firing guns were placed in the roads leading to the Crystal palace and the monarchists were summoned to surrender. Most of them did so without the slightest struggle.

There was serious rioting that evening at the headquarters of the Catholic association. The building was burned to the ground, while the mob stood around yelling "Death to the Jesuits." The mob was then dispersed by the cavalry and the cavalry was stationed at the end of the street.

The mob destroyed the shop of a book seller who displayed a picture of ex-King Manuel with the inscription "The good son shall return home."

ADMITS MURDER

Chicago Medical Student Killed Wife to Hide Bigamy.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—Dr. Harry Elgin Webster, a Rush medical college graduate student and interne at the Polyclinic hospital, in a remarkable confession to the police, admitted that he murdered one of his two young wives, Bessie Kent-Webster of Chicago, in the woods of Ogle county, ten miles from Dixon, Ill., Sept. 16. The police say the motive for the crime was Webster's desire to hide from his first wife, Zoe Varney-Webster of Cedar Rapids, Ia., the fact that he was a bigamist. He had married the two women within one week last January.

The accidental discovery of Bessie Kent's body Friday, almost two weeks after she had been killed, was followed by identification Saturday and the arrest Sunday morning of Webster.

BETS CASE WILL NOT GO TO TRIAL

Followers of Mayor Knotts Are Quite Enthusiastic.

CHANGE OF VENUE GRANTED

When a Gary Paving Contractor Heard of the Action of Court in Transferring Alleged Bribery Cases to Porter County, He Posted a Wager of $500 That This Would Be the End of the Latest Gary Scandal.

Crown Point, Ind., Oct. 2.—Judge Vernon W. Van Fleet, appointed to try the cases against Mayor Thomas E. Knotts, C. A. Williston, city engineer; Emerson Bowser, councilman, and John J. Nyhoff, former commissioner of public works, all of Gary, granted a change of venue from Lake county to the defendants, and sent the cases to Porter county.

Enthusiastic over the action of Judge Van Fleet, W. A. Cain, a wealthy paving contractor, posted $500 as a wager that the case would never come to trial. News of the transfer to Porter county created great joy among the followers of Mayor Knotts.

Attorney D. E. Boone, in pleading against the petitioned charges, asserted that Lake county had sent its dirty linen to Porter county once too often. The indicted mayor's friends express serene confidence of his acquittal.

Thomas Dean, who swore out the affidavits against the city officials, did not appear in the courtroom. A warrant has been sworn out for Dean and Mayor Knotts says he will be arrested at sight for perjury and conspiracy.

FOUGHT WITH KNIVES

Bloody Battle in Smoking Car of an Indianapolis Southern Train.

Linton, Ind., Oct. 2.—Like Greenleaf and Joe Morris of Midland are dying and Sam Overman and Frank Faught of Linton are dangerously injured as the result of a bloody fight on an Indianapolis Southern passenger train between here and Jasonville. An unidentified stranger fell under the train at Midland while it was coming to a stop, in an effort to escape the battle of knives being waged by six men, and lost his left arm and leg.

The fight started in the smoking car and was participated in by Greenleaf, Faught, Overman, Morris and two others whose names are unknown. Words were exchanged, a hot argument and then the knives flashed. Greenleaf was the first to succumb, being nearly disemboweled by a slashing stroke dealt by one of his opponents. Overman suffered a knife wound between his ribs. Overman and Faught were covered with blood. They were frightfully cut. It is thought none of their wounds will be fatal.

Conductor Griffith, with the assistance of the train crew, armed with clubs, attempted to quell the rioting men. Griffith was slightly injured in ejecting the combatants at Midland. Before the train could come to a stop at this point the passengers in their eagerness to escape, smashed out the glass in the windows. The man whose arm and leg were cut off jumped out a window.

A call was sent from Midland for the Linton police to meet the train at the depot.

They "Point With Pride."

Indianapolis, Oct. 2.—Members of the state board of pardons "pointed with pride" to a report laid before them by Warden E. J. Fogarty of the state prison, concerning the records of prisoners paroled on recommendation of the board since Jan. 1, 1909. The report showed that approximately one hundred prisoners had been released on recommendation of the board, and that only three had been returned for violation of parole conditions.

Evidence of Incendiarism.

Cannelton, Ind., Oct. 2.—It is believed that the fire which burned part of the plant of the chair factory here, owned by A. P. Fenn, was the work of incendiaries. Several attempts have been made previously to destroy this building, and Mr. Fenn believes that the work has been that of his enemies. During the last year several buildings belonging to Mr. Fenn, between Tell City and Cannelton, have been destroyed by fire.

Indianapolis, Oct. 2.—One of the interesting features of the twentieth annual conference of state charities and correction to be held in this city Oct. 28-31, will be the exhibits of the various institutions of Indiana. These exhibits will be shown in the statehouse during the conference, and already the heads of the various state institutions are at work getting them ready.

Poured Oil in Cook Stove.

Jeffersonville, Ind., Oct. 2.—Mrs. Lizzie Coe, fifty-five years old, wife of Isaac Coe, a farmer living near Borden, was burned to death by the explosion of a can of kerosene. She started a fire in the cook stove and to make it burn faster poured oil on the blaze. Neighbors found Mrs. Coe on the floor burned almost to a crisp.

SOCIETY IS OLD INSTITUTION

Article in Indianapolis Sun Concerning Ownie Bush, Tells of Old Rushville Team.

WHERE SHORTSTOP GOT START

Quick Rise of Premier Infielder is Described by Sporting Writer —is a Marvel.

An article in the Indianapolis Sun concerning Ownie Bush, now conceded to be the best shortstop in the American league and possibly in the United States, recalls some old baseball history of Rushville. It is as follows:

Owen Bush, the Detroit shortstop, first learned to handle a baseball on the old State Field grounds on East Washington street. He played the usual amateur and semi-pro ball and each year his reputation grew. James Geraghty, a local hotel man now, but then the manager of the strong Rushville baseball club, found himself in need of a shortstop. He had seen Bush play and had heard more which satisfied him that the young infielder was worth a trial. Bush accepted the proffered offer and joined Rushville for his first professional experience. He was young then, but he had the ability and was rapidly developing it. The Rushville team took a trip through Ohio and the sensational work of the shortstop attracted the attention of the Dayton Central-league club. He was signed by Dayton for a tryout the next season.

Bush reported to Dayton, but was sent to Marion, Ind., in the Interstate league. The latter circuit disbanded and Bush returned to Dayton, where he finished out the season. That fall he was turned over to South Bend and reported there in the spring. He was put on regular as shortstop and his all-around work attracted the attention of the leagues higher up. One day Bush went to bat six times and got six hits. This one performance threw him into the limelight and his playing was watched by the scouts from then on.

Indianapolis managed to obtain him for the next season, 1908, and in this city he developed into a finished ball player. His accurate and speedy fielding and his ability to get on base were his strong points here. He also distinguished himself by hitting opportunely and by getting the only home run ever knocked to right field inside the grounds at Washington park.

When the American association closed, Bush joined Detroit and immediately proceeded to set the fans wild by his sensational work in the shortfield, the weak part of the Tiger machine previously. The Jennings crowd won the pennant that year largely through the work of their very young new shortstop and it was quite unfortunate that by a national commission ruling he was barred from participation in the world's series that fall.

He put up the same brand of ball the following season and in the world's series with Pittsburgh he surprised his critics by playing good all-around ball throughout. His rapid rise has hardly been equaled, from a semi-pro in 1905 to a big league in 1908 and he is already the best shortstop in the game.

NO BARGAINS IN RELIGION

The Rev. W. H. Wylie Asserts That Christianity May be Had Only by Paying Price.

FIRST SERMON AT M. E. CHURCH

Likens it to Law of Life: Persons Get Out of it What They Put In.

"There is a common theory that religion is free," said the Rev. W. H. Wylie last evening at the St. Paul M. E. church. "Ministers preach it that way and it is so commonly believed to be free but at the risk of being unscriptural I am going to take issue with the theory." The Rev. Mr. Wylie brought out in his sermon that religion can not be had without paying the price even though it is free.

It was the new minister's first appearance in the pulpit of the local church. Despite the unfavorable weather conditions he was greeted by large congregations both morning and evening. The Rev. Mr. Wylie's sermons were convincing and the comment on them was very favorable. He came here from the Capitol Avenue Methodist church of Indianapolis.

In his sermon last evening the Rev. Mr. Wylie asserted that religion must be paid for regardless of the popular belief that it is absolutely free. He quoted some passages of scripture to show that it is a big undertaking to prove that religion is not free when in so many places the Bible refers to it as being had by anyone for the asking.

"Religion is free in one sense," continued the minister. "No money can buy it and no services can win it. There is a sense, however, a very true and deep sense, in which religion must be bought and paid for if we ever get it. We must give something in return for it. It is possible to hold these great truths of the gospel in our minds so as to cheapen them. It may be possible that people think they are cheap because they cost nothing. There are no spiritual bargain counters. We can not get anything from the spiritual world without paying for it, by giving something in return."

The Rev. Mr. Wylie told the legend from the Bible of the man who found some costly jewels in a field. It was the custom in that age that any inheritance that might have been hidden in the ground for safe keeping, belonged to the owner of the field in which it was found. This man, so the Bible story runs, had to buy the field before he could lay claim to the jewels which he found. He had to pay all that he had for the field so as to obtain the precious jewels. The Rev. Mr. Wylie said that Jesus presented the truth in that tale that Heaven is worth all that man can give for it. "The truth that I have been hinting at," said the Rev. Mr. Wylie, "is implied in that story. Even if a man must give all that he has for the Kingdom of God, it is worth the price. We are deceiving ourselves if we believe that we can get the glory of God without paying the price."

The minister pointed out that the relations between God and man are often likened to the marriage contract. He asked if it would not be ridiculous were the bridegroom-to-be to ask the girl to become his wife with the understanding that he go on with the same relations with other young women while she gave her all to him. He pointed out that it is the same with God.

"Not only in entering the Christian life but for all Christian virtues also we must pay the price," he declared. "We speak of an inheritance. It is no good only as we use it. So it is with the Christian inheritance; we get out of it in proportion to what we put into it. There are different kinds of Christians due to what they put into it. It is a law of life, too; that we get in return only what we cast into the arena."

The Friday afternoon Bible class will meet next Friday afternoon with Mrs. Lon Link. All former members of the class and all who wish to join the class are requested to be present at the first meeting. The lesson will be a review of the last year's work in the gospels.

The first meeting of Mrs. May W. Donnan's study class was held Saturday afternoon in the Graham school building. Mrs. Donnan talked about some Irish plays and playwrights. There is much interest just now in the result of the American visit of W. B. Yeats and Lady Gregory, the foremost exponents of the new Irish national drama. Mrs. Donnan said that the qualities of the Irish realistic drama are well brought out in the plays of the late John M. Lynde, and she urged her hearers to interest themselves in this Irish playwright, who is great in achievement as well as by comparison. There will be a large class this year to hear Mrs. Donnan's lectures on the development of the dramas; and to illustrate the fundamental principles of the drama it is Mrs. Donnan's purpose to avail herself freely of modern drama of merit that has awakened ed the public to the importance of the theater as a social force and to it great educative value, if maintained on the high level of art and morals.

Mrs. Willard Hildredth Amos and Mrs. Lawrence Miller Root entertained at a six course luncheon at the home of Mrs. Amos in North Perkins street Saturday afternoon at one o'clock in honor of Miss Orma Innis, who will be married to J. Chester Smith of Oklahoma City, Okla., Wednesday evening at the United Presbyterian church. The wedding colors of opink and lavender were carried out all through the luncheon. The table decorations consisted of individual crystal French baskets tied with lavender ribbon and filled with pink begonias. Spears of flowers were strewn over the table and a large French basket adorned the center. The luncheon set was real Venetian lace and the place cards were diminutive bridal slipper. The luncheon was served by the Misses Helen Frazee and Dorothy Sparks. The shower for Miss Innis was a complete surprise to her. She received many useful articles. The out-of-town guests was Miss Elsa Porter of Iowa, who will be the maid of honor at the wedding.
